Chinese Papers Take Differing Roads In Drive Against 'Capitalist Roaders'

HONG KONG, June 6 Analysts searching for clues rent antirightist campaign in China are being confronted with a quandary. The official papers, there are repeated calls for attacks on unnamed high officials who are said to be "capitalist roaders within the party" like the disgraced former deputy raced former deputy te minister, Teng Hsiao-

One particularly strident article signed "Liang Hsiao" —believed to be the pseudonum for a prolific group of leftist writers - warned that these rightist party leaders must be rooted out, for they are "imbued with an extremely counterrevolutionary kind of frenziedness" and like "ali Confucianists are hangmen capable of killing without even a blink of the eyes."

Support from Mao

Chairman Mao Tse-tung himself is said to have sup-ported this criticism with a new oracular quotatioo now being cited in the rash of new articles. "A number of man is reported to have said, "have moved backward and apposed the revolution" opposed the revolution. Why? Because they have be-come high officials and want to protect the interests of the

to protect the interests of the high officials."
Yet at the same time, analysts here have noted that editories in Jenmin Jih Pao, the official Communist Party daily, have clung to a milder stance. The most recent editories here Sunday made no torial, last Sunday, made no mention of these "high offi-cials," and dealt with the seemingly more innocnous theme that "the masses are the real heroes."

Little is known about the nese press. But one possible explanation for this diver-gence of view between the signed articles and the editorials is that the managements of the papers deliberately permit a variety of opin-ioo in their news columns during campaigns on the principle that some of these articles will make a genuine contribution to the debate.

On the other hand, the editorials, being more authoritative, must first be agreed on by the entire editorial hoard and understadily are also and undoubtedly are also passed oo by whatever group of senior leaders is making policy in Peking today.

Broadening of Targets

In the view of some analysts, China's so-called "radiwere not satisfied with the ouster of the unfortunate Mr. Teng in April and have been trying through the new attacks in the press to broaden the targets of the camen the targets of the cam-paign. But, the analysts also believe, the radicals appear to have been stalemated, temporarily at least, by their political opponents—the so-called moderates—who still occupy sufficiently powerful positions to keep their at-tacks from becoming official policy.

"It looks like they just don't have the horses," one Western analyst here ob-

Western analyst here observed. "The campaign appears to be idling."

To oversimplify, the "radicals" are ideologues who side with Chairman Mao in putting revolutionary rectitude ahead of mere economic development. The "moderates" are generally longtime party administrators, practical politicians, who stress centralized authority and orderly economic growth. This handy but probably misleading practice of categorizing Chinese leaders follows Chairman Mao's own habit of constantly speaking of the "struggle between the two lines."

There are some indications

There are some indications that the Chinese themselves are far from reaching a verdict on the outcome of the campaign. One Chinese Communist representative in Hong Kong, when asked recently whether more party officials would be purged, replied simply, "It all depends."

There are also indications There are also indications that many Chinese, as well as analysts in Hong Kong, are having trouble following the latest twists in the official line, especially Chairman Meo's favorite notion that "file bourgeoisie is right inside the party."

"At first I could oot understand this," writes Lin Chunchiso, the first secretary of a country party committee in Hunnan, Chairman Mao's native province.

related Mr. Liu in an article broadcast last week over the provincial radio sta-tion. "I could not see clearly the curious things that were reflected in the party. I never imagined that class struggle existed there."

Emerging Bourgeois

What shook me most was emergence of Liu Shao-as a bourgeois in the parring to the former head of state who was denounced as a "capitalist roader" in the Cutural Revolution. "I could not sleep all night."

But when Mr. Liu discovered that poor peasants in one of his production teams that included no former landlords were devoting them-selves full time to their private plots and had aban-doned their collective fields, he began to see the light.

Although the Communists' takeover had seemingly wiped out the landlords "like ants in a hot frying pan," Mr. Liu wrote, "they are still longing for the power in our hands and trying by all means to seek agents in the party." Class struggle, Mr. Liu concluded, goes on inde-finitely, as Chairman Mao

In some areas Peking has achieved remarkable results. According to a recent broad-cast from Kiangsu Province, the birth rate in Nantung District has dropped from 1 percent in 1972 to percent last year.

Evidently, however, there are still some holdoots. A report last mooth by the Shanghai No. 5 Iron and Steel Plant said that among the factory's 6,000 workers hired since the Cultural Rerolution some were "influenced by the bourgeois concept of love" and "some undesirable tendencies have popped up."

To counteract these, the factory has set up a late-mar-riage and family-planning workshop, and the young workers have pledged not to squander their youth."

Another "meaningful" ac-tivity" the plant has taunched as part of this ef-fort has been the "voluntary labor" done by the workers of the machine-maintenance section every Saturday night since March-1975.

VANCOUVER, British Columbia, June 6—"Land, because of the crucial role it plays in human settlements, cannot be treated as an ordinary asset, controlled by individuals and subject to the pressures and inefficiencies of the market."

With that concept as a point of departure, representatives of 135 oations embarked last week on a protracted debate about how conventional property rights might be changed to improve human living conditions.

The subject proved to be the thorniest of an immense array of possible reforms and innovations explored and argued as the United Nations Conference on Human Settlemeots (Habitat) reached the halfway point in a two-week parley oo world-

As with most recent Uoited Nations assemblages, the meeting quickly shaped up as a quest for a common vocabulary by the industrialized nations and the far more oumerous developing countries.

Key to Earthly Salvation

The third world, with about three-quarters of the globe's four billion people, has hundreds of millions of landless farmers and urban-fringe squatters to whom the redistribution of land—often coocentrated in the bands of affluent minorities—seems the key to earthly salvation.

These nations dominated the preconference drafting of proposed "recommendations for national actioo" that included statements favoring public ownership of land, government regulation of land use, expropriation of profits from land speculation, and public "recapture" of increases in land value attributable to public development.

American in Luanda to Aid 2 Accused as Mercenaries

> By MARVINE HOWE dal to The New York Time LUANDA, Angola, June 6

A criminal lawyer from Columbus, Ohin, arrived here early today to defend twn Americans who are among 13 men facing trial as military mercenaries. The accused men fought against the nationalist faction that won the civil war in this former

It was in February that the forces of the Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola, supported by Cuban troops, captured the 13, who were fighting on the side of the pro-Western National Front for the Liberation of Angola. The Popular Movement has established a Government here at Luanda, the old colonial capi-

in the last few years by the Eri-rean issue. Ethiopians and Western diplomats io Addis Ababa belive that the Sudan has served as a staging for Eritrean rebels seeking au-tonomy from Ethiopia. In April, Khartoum protested sharply to Addis Ababa that Ethiopian planes bad attacked targets— presumably Ethiopian refugees

Threat to Security Seen

President Gaafar al-Nimeiry said last week that the Sudan would not allow its security to be threatened by the conflict in Eritrea. Ethiopia's northernmost province, which has the country's only seaports. The President appealed to the rebels to "sit at the conference table units of the conference table to the research of the conference table. without preconditions to settle their dispute by dialogue in-stead of bullets."

The rebellion in Eritrea has pressing for autonomy from Ethiopia. The two guerrilla movements, tha predominantly Front and the Marxist-oriented Popular Liberation Forces, are supported by such Arab nations as Libya, Iraq and Syria, who luence in the Red Sea.

The rebels, their streogth estimated at 10,000 to 15,000 nen, bave seized a large share of the Eritrean countryside and tied up two divisions of Ethiopian troops—half the nation's army. To Ethiopia, the Eritrean problem is deeply significant, since the loss of Eritrea could loosen a wave of uprisings else where in the nation. The secession of Eritrea would mean the loss of the Ethiopian ports of Assab and Massawa.

Last month Ethiopia rounded up 25,000 to 40,000 peasants—
the figure remains uncertain—
io central and northern provinces and moved them on trucks and buses to the Eritrean bor-ider to attack the rebels. The peasants, most of them Chris-tians and most of them also iffiterate, are armed with 45-year-old Italian rifles and machine guns. They have been told to wage a kind of holy war against the Eritreans, about half of whom are Mosants moving along the border. The army has sent a large protective force to the area, according to diplomatic sources.

Compounding the Sudan's problems are more than 100,000 refugees from Eritrea who have sought refuge in northeast Sudan, largely because of Ethiopian air and infantry attacks on Eritrean villages.

Western diplomats also report that Maj. Meogistu Reme Mariam, the first vice chairman and central figure of Ethiopia's provisidual military covernment, returned recently from a secret trip to China. It is widely assumed by most diplomats that Major Mengitsu went to Peking seeking to buy erms for the 40,000-man Ethiopian Army, which is equipped for the most part by the United States.

SANTIAGO DE COMPOSTE-

LA, Spain, May 27-In the uncertainty in which Spanish potical life is re-emerging while Generaliesimo Francisco Franco's restrictions on politics remain in force; the universities heve become havens of relative immunity. The police stay out, most of the time.

"The university is a parlia-ment of political life in Gali-cia," said a knowledgeable journalist in this venerable university town and place of pil-grimege since the Middle Ages. "It is e temple of debete."

The debate is carried on by a multiplicity of political orga-nizations, most to the left of center and known by puzzling sets of initiels. None of the groups are large in number, which leads more conservetive professors and observers to say, perhaps with a pinch of wishful thinking, that while the ooise level is high political in-terest is not very wide.

3 Categories of Students

Prof. Xosé Manuel Beiras Torrado of the economics department disagreed. An active member of the clandestine Socialist Party and teacher in the politically liveliest part of the university, he divides students into three categories.

The first, he seid, is made;

the second composed of the will be better.

"Most students tend vaguely toward socialism." the professor said, emphasizing "vaguely." His emphasis was borne out by random conversations with students taking the evening air on the broad staircase leading to the plaza oo the side of the great Cathedral of St. James, which spans all Spanish architecture from the Romanesoue of the 12th century to the Baroque of the 18th.

What they considered the anarchists' supermilitancy, the Communists spent a right removing slogans from the walls. GISCARD CONFERS ON GAULLIST RIFT

Meets With Chirac in Bid to Assure Party on Defense and Capital Gains Tax

> By JAMES F. CLARITY pecial to The New York Times

PARIS, June 6 — President Valery Giscard d'Estaing and Prime Minister Jacques Chirac conferred in a secluded corner of southern France today in an apparent attempt to find a solution to the serious dissatisfac tion that has arisen in the Gaullist Party over some of the President's programs and poli-

The dissension among the Gaullists, numerically the strongest group in Mr. Giscard d'Sstaing's Coalition Govern-ment, flared last week over two issues—the proposed capital gains tax and the President's defeose policy. But the dissatisfaction with the President among the Gaullists had been growing since last March, when the lefist opposition made siz-able gains in nationwide local elections, Many Gaullist leaders blamed the President for the leftist gains. The Gaullists are also openly annoyed by the re-cent political tactics of another leader of a faction of the President's majority, Justice Minister Jean Lecanuet, who heads the Centrists.

As the two leaders met at Bregancon, a Presideotial residence on the Mediterranean betweeo Toulon and Cannes, there was widespread specula-tion among politicians and dipplomats here that Mr. Giscard d'Estaing, leader of the Independent Republican Party, and Mr. Chirac, the oation's most prominent Gaullist, were trying to avert a political crisis. No offistatements have been issued since the two leaders began their talks last night, and now is expected until tomorrow night or Tuesday.

Speculation in Capital

While there was oo informa tion coming out of Bregancon speculation in Paris includ ed solutions involving a vast revision of the capital gains legslation ,the resignation of Mr Chirac or the dissolution of the National Assembly by the President and the calling of new legislative elections two years before they are expected.

There were also reports cir-culating in the capital that the solotion would be moderate, possibly involving a shuffling of cabinet ministers, giving the Gaullists more power in the

The Gaullists' dissension erupted in public last week first over an explanation of the Government's defense policy by the army chief of staff, Gen. Guy Mery. The general's state ment in a magazine article that France was prepared, under certain conditions, to fight on the front line of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in the event of an attack on West Germany disturbed many Gaullists. While the statement was described by Mr. Giscard d'Estaing as representing no de-fense policy change, it was in-terpreted by many Gaullists as an erosion of the policy under which President Charles de Gaulle withdrew French forces from the military command of NATO 10 years ago.

Gaullists Oppose Tax Bill

Further trouble arose last week during the three days of heated debate on the President's capital gains tax. Many of the 174 Gaullists io the Asor the 1/4 Gaullists to the Assembly spoke against the measure and offered amendments to it, saying they could not vote for it in its present form. A large-scale defection of Gaullists in the vote on the capital gains tax could kill the legislation one of Mr. Giscard d'Estation, one of Mr. Giscard d'Estation. tion, one of Mr. Giscard d'Es-taing's most favored efforts at reform. The leftist opposition in the Parliament is already united against the measure. Both the left and some Gaul-lists say the legislation has too many loopholes, which would result in heavy taxes on poor and middle-class people while the rich escaped.

The Gaullist dissatisfaction with Mr. Leganuet arose from

The Gaullist dissatisfaction with Mr. Lecanuet arose from his maneuvers two weeks ago to create more cooperation better the Centween his own party, the Cen-trists, and the Independent Republicans, considered by some Gaullists as a potentially dangerous political snuh. Since the crisis speculation arose here in recent days, Mr. Chirac, who was named three months ago, by Mr. Giscard d'Estaing to unify and galvanize the majority, has said little, except that he is sure the Gaullist Party will is sure the Gaullist Party will emerge from the situation unit-ed and intact.

Smoking. What are you going to do about it?

Many people are against cigarettes. You've heard their arguments. And even though we're in the business of selling cigarettes, we're not going to advance arguments in favor of smoking.

We simply want to discuss one irrefutable fact.

A lot of people are still smoking cigarettes. In all likelihood, they'll continue to smoke cigarettes and nothing anybody has said or is likely to say is going to change their minds.

Now, if you're one of these cigarette smokers, what are you going to do about it? You may continue to smoke your present brand. With all the enjoyment and pleasure you get from smoking it. Or, if 'tar' and nicotine has become a concern to you, you may consider changing to a cigarette like Vantage.

Of course, there is no other cigarette quite like Vantage.)

Vantage has a unique filter that allows rich flavor to come through it and yet substantially cuts down on 'tar' and nicotine.

We want to be frank. Vantage is not the lowest'tar'and nicotine cigarette you can buy. But it may well be the lowest 'tar' and nicotine cigarette you will enjoy smoking.

Vantage. It's the only cigarette that gives you so much taste with so little 'tar' and nicotine.

We suggest you try a pack.

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

DAMAGE IS WIDE IN IDAHO FLOODING

like match sticks in the tide.

At a news conference this evening, Gilbert Stamm, Commissioner of the Bureau of Reclamation, said that engi-neers believed the dam was breached either because water from behind it made its way around a curtain of grouting [a cemeot-based filler] on the dam or through it. Mr. Stamm somewhat unusual in that its foundation was rhyolite, a porous, igneous rock. Gen. Gordon Shore of Idaho National Guard said that several hundred guardsmen were on duty io the area, looking for flood victims from helicopters. He said that one helicopter had landed on the roof of a barn, so that guardsme could rescue a woman and her seven small children in a trailer waist-deep in water.

Some further flooding was expected downstream on the Snake, according to General Shore, Meanwhile, a reservoir behind a dam on the Snake at American Falls, about 50 miles south of Idaho Falls, was drained to keep the flood waters from putting pressure on Combines and tractors lay on their sides in the middle of watery fields like bugs in a swamp. Near Roberts, a town about 15 miles north of Idaho Falls, which was flooded last night and this morning, herds of cattle could be seen huddled all islands surrounded by the fast-moving river, Houses oo Runway

Mobile homes were scattered throughout the valley, having been ripped from them foundations. Two houses that had been swept off their plots sat at the end of the partly washedout runway of Rexburg airport. Another landed in the middle of a school football field. Many homes were simply flattened. Residents throughout the region, particularly farmers, were warned to take extra caution around water that might have been contaminated when flood-ing reached stored farm pesti-

A team of engineers from the Federal Bureau of Reclamation was investigating the site, trying to figure out how the dam had spring the leak yesterday that blew out the structure, sending a wall of water through the valley. Harry Stivers assistant regional director of the bureau's Pacific Northwest region, said officials estimated that about four million cubic yards of dirt and rock from the dam's struc-ture had been blown loose.

Authorized by Congress in 1964 and started in 1971, the 300-foot-high Teton Dam was a controversial project from its inception.

Environmentalists objected to it on the grounds that it would be built in a fault zone, that it would interfere with a wild river area and that it would disturb deer and fowl nearby.

Sued to Bar Dam

In 1973, three groups, the Idaho Environmental Council, the Sierra Club and Trout Unlimited, sued to block its construction, saving the statement on the project's impact on the environment, required by Federal law, was inadequate.

At a trial in Federal District Court in Boise, the cooservationists put a former Bureau of Reclamation geologist, Shirley Pytlak, oo the stand to warn that the dam would be dangerous.

She argued that core-drilling holes made as a test had soaked up 300 gallons of water a minute. "If this much water can be absorbed by drilled holes, how much would leak from the whole reservoir?" she asked.

The court ruled, bowever, that the impact statement, which made no mention of geologic faults or other problems in the vicinity, was adequate. The United States Court of Appeals for the Nioth Circuit up-held the decision in late 1974. H. Anthony Rockel, the at-torney for the Sierra Club's legal defense fund who argued the case, said today the dam was "a great tragedy." He added, "If the environmental impact statement and other studies had been carried out more thoroughly and standards rigidly applied, either the dam would not have been built in that place or this horrible accident would not have oc-

Luce, Head of Con Ed, Gets $40,000 Raise

The Coosolidated Edison Company, which on Friday asked the Public Service Commission for a 10.4 percent increase in electric rates last month raised the salary of its chairman, Charles F. Luce, by 20 percent, to $200, 000 a year, a con Ed spokesman said Saturday night.

The spokesman said that the utility's board of trustees voted at its monthly meeting in May to increase Mr. Luce's salary by $40,000 annually in order to make his salary "competitive" with those of heeds of other utilities. The spokesman said Mr. Luce had refused four other offers of salary increases in the last 10 years.

Mr. Church is, however, on the statewide at-large ballot, and Fifth Ward voters will have an opportunity to vote for him in that phase of the primary. Text of Findings on C.I.A.

WASHINGTON, June 6-Following is the text of the conclusions of the final report of the Senate Intelligence Committee on the activities of the Central Intelligence Agency. In the text, D.C.I. is the Director of Central Intelligence. D.D.I. is the Directorate for Intelligence, D.D.O. is the Directorate for Operations and N.S.C. is the National Security Council

The C.LA. was conceived and established to provide high-quality intelligence to senior policymakers. Since 1947 the ageocy-its structure, its place within the Government and its function—has undergone dramatic change and expansion. Sharing characteristics common to most large, complex organizations, the C.I.A. has responded to rather than anticipated the forces of change; it has accumulated functions rather than redefining them; its internal patterns were established early and have solidified; success has come to those who have made visible contribotions in high-priority areas. These general character-istics have affected the specifics of the agency's development.

The notion that the C.I.A. could serve as e coordinating hody for departmental intelligence activities and that the D.C.I. could orchestrate the process did not take into account the inherent institutiooal obstacles posed by the departmeots. From the outset no department was willing to concede a centralized intelligence function to the CLA. Each insisted on the maintenance of its independent capabilities to support its policy role. With budgetary and management authority vested in the departments, the agency was left powerless in the execution of interdepartmental coordination. Even in the area of coordinated national intelligence estimates the departments did not readily provide the agency with the data required

It was oot until John McCone's term as D.C.L that the agency aggressively sought to assert its position as a coordinating body. That effort demonstrated the complex factors that determined the relative success of community managemeot. One of the principal influences was the support accorded the D.C.L by the President and the cooperation of the Secretary of Defense. In a situation where the D.C.L commanded no resources or outright authority, the position of these two individuals was crucial. While Kennedy and McNamara provided McCone with consistent backing in a variety of areas, Nixon and Laird failed to provide Helms with enough support to give him the necessary bureaucratic

Lack of Coordination

It is clear that the D.C.L's own priorities, derived from their backgrounds and interests, influenced the relative success of the agency's role in interdepartmental coordination. Given the limitations on the D.C.I.'s authority, only by making community activities a first order concern and by pursuing the problems assertively could a D.C.I. begin to make a difference in effecting better management, During Allen Dulles' term interagency coordination weot neglected, and the results were expansion of competing capabilities among the departments. For McCone, community intelligence activities were clearly a priority, and his definition of the D.C.L's role contributed to whatever advances were made. Helms' fundamental interests and be did not push his mandate to its possible limits.

The D.C.I.'s basic problems bave been competing claims on his time and atteotioo and the lack of real authority for the execution of the ceotral Intelligeoce function. As presently defined, the D.C.I.'s job is burdensome in the extreme. He is to serve the roles of chief intelligence adviser to the President, manager of community intelligence activities, and senior executive in the C.I.A. History has demonstrated that the job of the D.C.I. as community manager and as head of the C.I.A. are competing, not complementary roles. In terms of both the demands imposed by each function and the expertise required to fulfill the responsibilities, the two roles differ coosiderably. In the future separating the functions with precise definitions of authority and responsibilities may prove a plausible alternative

Although the agency was established primarily for the purpose of providing intelligeoce analysis to senior policy makers, within three years clandestine operations became and cootinued to be the agency's pre-eminent activity. The single most important factor in the transformation was policymakers' perception of the Soviet Union as a worldwide threat to United States security. The agency's large-scale clandestine activities have mirrored American foreign policy priorities. With political opera-tions in Europe in the 1950's, paramili-tary operations in Korea, Third World activities. Cuba, Southeast Asia, and currently narcotics cootrol, the C.I.A.'s major programs paralleled the international concerns of the United States. For nearly two decades American pol icymakers considered covert action vital in the struggle against international Communism. The generality of the definitioo or "threat perception" motivated the continual development and justifica tion of covert activities from the senior policymaking level to the field stations Apart from the overall anti-Communist motivation, successsive Presidential administrations regarded covert action as a quick and convenient means of advancing their particular objectives.

Incentive System Criticized

Internal inceptives contributed to the expansion in covert action. Within the agency D.D.O. careerists have traditionally been rewarded more quickly for the visible eccomplishments of covert action than for the long term development of agents required for clandestine collection. Clandestine activities will remain an element of United States foreign policy, and policymakers will directly affect the level of operations. The promineoce of the Clandestine Service within the agency may moderate as money for and high-level executive io terest in covert actions diminish. However, D.D.O. incentives which emphasize operations over collection and which create an internal demand for projects will continue to foster covert action unless an internal conversion process forces a change.

In the past the orientation of D.C.Ls such as Dulles and Helms also contributed to the agency's emphasis on clandestine activities. It is no coincidence that of those D.C.Ls who have been Agency careerists, all have come from the Clandestine Service, Except for James Schlesinger's brief appointment, the agency bas never been directed by a trained analyst. The qualities demanded of individuals in the D.D.O.—essentially management of people-serve as the basis for bureaucratic skills in the organization. As a result, the agency's leadership has been dominated by D.D.O. careerists.

Claudestine collection and covert action have had their successes, i.e., individual activities have attained their stated objectives. What the relative contributioo of clandestine activities has been-the extent to which they have contributed to or detracted from the implementation of United States foreign policy and whether the results have been worth the risk-cannot be evaluated without wide access to records oo covert operations, access the committee did not have.

Organizational arrangements within the agency and the decision-making structure ootside the agency have permitted the extremes in C.I.A. activity. The ethos of secrecy which pervaded the D.D.O. had the effect of setting the directorate apart within the agency and allowed the Clandestine Service a measure of autonomy oot accorded other directorate. More importantly, the compartmentatioo principle allowed units of the D.D.O. freedom in defining operations. In many cases the burden of responsibility fell oo individual judgments-a situation in which lapses and deviations are inevitable. Previous excesses of drug testing, assassination planning and domestic activities were supported by an internal structure that permitted individuals to conduct operations without the consistent necessity or expectation of justifying or revealing their activities.

Rlurred Accountability

Ultimately, much of the responsibility for the scale of covert action and for whatever abuses occurred must fall to senior policymakers. The decision-making arrangements at the N.S.C. level created an environment of blurred accountability which allowed consideration of actions without the constraints of individual responsibility. Historically the ambiguity and imprecision derived from the initial expectation that covert operations would be limited and therefore could be managed by a small, informal group. Such was the intention in 1948. By 1951 with the impetus of the Korean war, covert action bad become a fixed element in the U.S. foreign policy repertoire. The frequency of covert action forced the development of more formalized decision-making arrangements. Yet structural changes did not alter ambiguous procedures. In the late 1950's the relationship between Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and Allen Dulles allowed informal agreements and personal understandings to prevail over explicit and precise decisions. In addition, as the scale of covert action expanded, policymakers found it useful to maintain the ambiguity of the decision-making process to insure secrecy and to allow 'plausible deniability" of covert operations.

No ooe in the executive-least of all the President-was required to formally sign off oo a decisioo to implement a covert action program. The D.C.I. was responsible for the execution of a project but not for taking the decision to implement it. Within the N.S.C. a group of individuals beld joint responsibility for defining policy objectives, but they did not attempt to establish criteria placing moral and constitutional limits oo activities undertaken to achieve the objectives. Congress has functioned under similar conditions. Within the Congress a bandful of committee members passed on the agency's budget. Some members were informed of most of the C.LA.'s major activities; others preferred oot to be informed. The result was twenty-nine years of acqui-

At each level of scrutiny in the National Security Council and in the Congress a small group of individuals controlled the spproval processes. The restricted oumber of individuals involved as well as the assumption that their actions would not be subject to outside scrutioy contributed to the scala of covert action and to the development of questionable practices.

Independent Development

The D.D.O. and the D.D.L evolved tions, serving different policy needs. Essectially, the two directorates hava functioned as separate organizations. They maintain totally independent career tracks and once recruited into one, individuals are rarely posted to the

In theory the D.D.O.'s clandestine collection functioo should bave contributed to the D.D.L's analytic capacity. However, D.D.O. concerns about maintaining the security of its operations and protecting the identity of its agents, and D.D.I. concerns about measuring the reliability of its sources restricted interchange between the two directorates. Fundamentally, this has deprived the D.D.I. of a major source of information. Although D.D.I.-D.D.O. cootact has increased during the last five years, it remains limited The D.D.I. has traditionally not been informed of sensitive covert operations undertaken by the D.D.O. This has affected the respective missions of both directorates. The Clandestice Service has not had the benefit of intelligence support during coosideration and implemeotation of its operations. The Bay of Pigs invasion was an instance in which D.D.L analysts, even the Deputy Director for Intelligence, were uninformed and represents a situation in which timely analysis of political trends and basic geography might have made a differeoce-either io the decision to embank on the operation or in the plans for the operation. In the D.D.I., lack of knowledge about operations has complicated and undermined the analytic effort. Informatioo on a C.I.A.-sponsored Essentially, the potential quality of the finished intelligence product suffers.

In Treasury Department. Yet these changes cannot compensate for the nature of the intelligence production system itself, which employs hundreds of analysts of location at the volumes, and eight months interviewing 60 present and former agency officials.

Her five-page conclusion says the agency "responded to make the agency "responded to which employs hundreds of analysts, most of whom have little sustained contact with their consumers.

Reciprocal Relationship

At the Presidential level the D.C.L's position is essential to that utilization of iotelligence. The D.C.L must be contact when the production system itself, the agency "responded to rather operations, analysis and coordination of overall American intelligence activities.

The pagency personal treatment of the principal target of American intelligence in March 1946, three years before the principal target of American intelligence in March 1946, three years before the principal target of American intelligence.

At the Presidential level the D.C.I.'s position is essential to the utilization of iotelligence. The D.C.I must be constantly informed, must press for access, must vigorously sell bis product and must anticipate future demands. Those D.C.I.'s who have heen most successful in this dimension have been those whose primary identification was not with the D.D.O.

Yet the relationship between intelligence analysis and policymaking is a reciprocal one. Senior policymaking is a reciprocal one. Senior policymaking is a reciprocal one. Senior policymaking is a reciprocal one for the agency more for covert operations than for intelligence analysis. While only the agency could perform covert operations, decisioomaking methods determined Presidential reliance on the C.I.A.'s intelligence capabilities. Preference for small staffs, in dividual advisers, the need for specialized information of which intelligence canalysis may be a part. It was John F. Kennedy who largely determined John McCone's relative influence by defining the D.C.I.'s role and by including McCone's relative influence by defining the D.C.I.'s role and by including McCone's relative influence by defining the D.C.I.'s role and by including McCone in the policy process; if was Lyndoo Johnson and Richard Nixon who limited the roles of Richard Helms and William Colby. Although in the abstract objectivity may be the most desirable. William Colby. Although in the abstract objectivity may be the most desirable quality in intelligence analysis, objective independent are frequently not what senior officials want to hear about their policies. In most cases, Presidents are inclined to look to the judgments of individuals they know and trust. Both these considerations came into play on the diagramed deal, reported by Philip Cowan of New Rochelle, from the recent final of the Westchester Double Knockout Team Champion-

Remove North's club king and replace it with any lower club, and seven spades would be the most desirable contract, needing only a three-two trump break. The four-four fit proves to be profitable because clubs can be discarded on hearts after trumps are drawn, and the club seven is eventually ruffed inthe North hand.

Best Contract Reached

But with the club king in the North hand, there is no advantage in playing in spades. If that suit breaks three-two, there are 13 tricks available in spades, hearts or no-trump. Seven spades stands or fails on the trump split. Seven no-trump is a fraction better, and seven hearts is better still, as was demonstrated in practice.

The Zoo as Ghetto

By ANATOLE BROYARD

My first visit to the Central Park Zoo occurred when I was 7 years old. It was feeding time in the lion house and I remember thrilling to the roars of the hun-gry animals as they leaped up on the bars of their cages. This was before television, and wild animals had not yet become commonplace. As an adolescent, I returned alone to the zoo, hoping to repeat the experience. I was still impressed, partly through having read the entire Tarzan series, with large animals. The second visit was a failure. The lions, tigers, leopards and cheetahs lay silent and indifferent in their cages as their food was thrown in. What had bappened? I wondered Perhaps,

I thought, these were the same animals I had seen 10 years earlier and they had grown bored with zoo life.

"Living Trophies," by Peter Batten, offers some answers to my question. A former zoo director and designer, Mr. Batten spent four months, together with his research associate, Deborah Stancil, inspecting and photographing almost 200 zoos in the United States. To call his findings depressing would be putting it mildly. .

Most zoos, he says, suffer from insolvency, the incompetence of many of the people who work in them, the "hyper-competitiveness" of their directors, the inefficiency of the civil service to staff and maintain them properly and the ignorance or cruelty of a large proportion of the visiting public. Judging from his savage tone, Mr. Batten has seen enough atrocities to turn him into something of a wild

List of Abuses

Here are some of the abuses he lists andsometimes documents: Many birds' wings are clipped so that they are easier to house; a male lion had been castrated, de-clawed, suffered his canine teeth to be ground away, and, as a final twist, had had his tongue ampotated by a vandal; nonabrasive floors caused excessive hoof growth that crippled zebras and other hoofed animals; abrasive floors were away the claws, then the flesh, of animals that are natural diggers; birds and animals accustomed to tropical climates were given unheated tin drums in which to sleep in places where the temperatures fell as low as 17 degrees; animals were often given too much or too little light and their sight was damaged; many animals sustained inuries from metal spikes that projected into their cages, alligators' eyes were gouged out by vandals; cherry bombs were thrown into cages; Coke bottles were thrown down hippos' throats; a baby elephant was given an overdose of drugs by "playful" young visitors; any number of animals have developed neuroses as a result of teasing, noise, fack of occupation and improper en-

When drunks or exhibitionists invaded the cages of large animals, it was invari-ably the animal who was shot, and I have no doubt that Mr. Batten feels that this form of "justice" was arbitrary at best. Incompatible animals were often put in the same cage, with the result that some killed the others. Io the case of chimpanzees, which of all animals are most like man in their behavior, three males developed a homosexual menage a trois.

In "Living Trophies," the author objects to the image of the animal as a plaything with only the most minimal needs and intelligence. At a time when many psychotherapies are desperately reaching for the animal in man, he would seem to be justified in his indignation. The press releases and "educational" materials sent out by some zoos are described by Mr. Batten as "abominable snow jobs." He deplores the fact that zoo directors have tenure and are virtually impossible to remove, even when their incompetence has been dramatically demonstrated. Another thing that spurs his ire is the preference in zoos for. "fashionable" or "exotic" animals like cheetahs and the downgrading of our own national species.

A Program of Reform

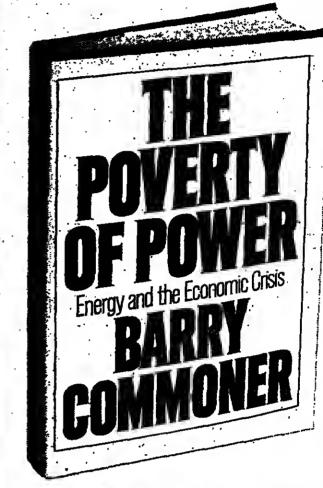

While the author is an angry man, he does offer a series of constructive suggestions. Animals, he says, should have a bill of rights too, and one that is enforced. expected him to suggest, after criticizing their food and housing, that they be put on welfare as well. The zoo directors, according to the author, should undergo a complete course of professional training in several fields, including administration and animal care.

Mr. Batten feels that zoos should be funded by the Federal Government, that animals should be selectively, not randomly, bred and that birth control should be practiced to prevent growth beyond the zoo's capacity - especially since these surplus animals are sometimes sold to experimental laboratories, hunting organizations and other commercial exploiters of

After admitting that humane and conservation organizations do a certain amount of good, the unappeasable Mr. Batten adds that with only one or two exceptions, their founders have become "insufferable hores" who refuse to cooperate with other groups whose views differ in minor ways from their own. There are 305 aquariums, housing 130,000 speci-. mens, now in the United States. After toy-ing with the notion of euthanasia for a large number of their suffering animals, the author grudgingly settles for a program of reform based on smaller zoos that would be capable of giving better care to their charges.

The apathetic, obese, neurotic creatures we see in so many zoos do not do justice, Mr. Batten says, to the majesty of creation. If he does succeed in cleaning up our zoos, I, for one, hope he will then turn his evangelist's zeal to that other apathetic, obese, neurotic species on this side of the

Primary Climax

The first phase of the Presidential election process comes to its noisy end tomorrow, with climactic primaries in New Jersey, Ohio and California-all three of them heavyweights in population, delegates and electoral impact. As the crucial primary day approaches, both President Ford and former Georgia Governor Carter have their parties' nominations almost within their grasp. If there are to be upsets now, they will have to be big ooes, to permit the one Republican challenger or the half-dozen Democratic contenders to stay alive.

On the Republican side, President Ford received an unexpected boost from former Governor Reagan's latest verbal goof, the suggestloo-however couched in the hypothetical-that there might be circumstances in which American troops should be sent to Rhodesia.

To longtime watchers of the Reagan campaign, this little episode fitted into an uncanny pattern of ill-timed hlunders that have already cost the candidate dearly. Mr. Reagan's waverings about Social Security early in the campaign lost him essential support in New Hampshire and Florida. His unenthusiastic musings about the Tennessee Valley Authority did him no good among Tennessee and Kentucky Republicans.

Far-fetched though it may seem, the Ford forces believe that Mr. Reagan may now be tripping himself up in California. A loss in his home state would surely end his challenge for good. If Mr. Ford should make a strong showing in California-even short of victory-and go on to take Ohio and New Jersey as expected, the incumbent President would be in a firm position that no amount of preconvection maneuvering is likely to demolish.

Among the Democrats, the siege is tightening around Mr. Carter from all sides; yet the front-runner would have to collapse in all three states to lose his ground.

California's Democrats allot their delegates proportionally to the popular vote-unlike the Republicans' winnertake-all rules. Thus, even though the late-starting Governor Brown can expect a majority on his own turf, Mr. Carter may pick up some convention votes. In Ohio the anti-Carter vote will be split betweeo Congressman Udali and Senator Church.

It is New Jersey where the anti-Carter forces seem at their most desperate, fielding an uncommitted slate ready to go for either Governor Brown or Senator Humphrey-anyone, it would seem, except Jimmy Carter. Mr. Brown bopes to repeat his Rhode Island triumph of the uncommitteds, while Senator Humphrey persists in his campaign with such vigor as to mock his continuing claims of noncandidacy.

Those are the permutations for tomorrow. By Wednesday the preliminaries should be over and American voters could find themselves facing just two major candidates for the Presidency of the United States.

Nuclear Decision...

"Our representatives depend ultimately on decisions made in the village square. . . . To the village square we must carry the facts of atomic energy. From there must come America's voice."

So wrote Albert Einstein in 1946. Tomorrow in California one segment of the nation's village square will sound its voice on the wisdom and safety of relying upon nuclear energy to power America's future.

Conveying the facts of atomic energy to the public has turned out to be a less decisive process than Einstein eovisaged, for mere "facts" in this case do not add up to answers. For months past, as the date of California's nuclear referendum approached, millions of dollars have heen spent in publicity campaigns, by advocates and opponents of ooclear power alike, io the effort to persuade the electorate. But the effort has brought no clarity. Equally authoritative voices have divided on whether ouclear power plants are "safe" and economical. The public-not only in California-is confronted with an uncomfortable choice: which experts to believe?

California's so-called Proposition 15 would set stringent technical and political conditions for the construction of new nuclear power plants within the state, and phase down over years the operation of present plants unless they can meet safety assurances far more extensive than any yet required.

Nuclear advocates claim that passage of the initiative would effectively scotch all nuclear power development in California; the measure's spoosors argue that it would merely force the nuclear industry to prove its claims of safety and efficiency.

This is one case in which the campaign may prove more decisive than the election, for whichever way California's voters come down, the promise of ouclear power has grown tarnished; technologically and economically, the nuclear industry has been thrown on the defensive by a skeptical public.

The California Legislature passed three hills virtually on the eve of the referendum which would curtail ouclear development, though less rigidly than the popular initiative. Even if Proposition 15 is rejected, about a dozen other states are slated to have antinuclear measures on their ballots in November.

. and America's Voice

It may be tempting to argue-contrary to Einsteinthat nuclear decisions are too technical and complex to be properly put before the public. Certainly some antinuclear campaigns have verged on the irresponsible in the use of far-fetched scare tactics. But a committee of the California Legislature dismissed this argument after hearing 120 expert witnesses, concluding:

"The issues are not solely resolvable through application of scientific expertise. The debate is more the result of differing views on human abilities, human fallibility and human behavior than anything else. The questions involved require value judgments, and the voter is no less equipped to make such judgments than the most brilliant Nobel Laureate."

Many voters are undoubtedly inclined to accept the projections of national energy needs and assurances of relative safety provided by the nuclear industry and its scientific supporters. Their decision on Election Day tomorrow will be easy.

But others have growing doubts. It is arguable that projected energy demand over the coming decades can he cut back without harming the growth of the national economy or the life style of its citizens. Further, the advances made in solar energy technology and the nuclear fusion process over the past couple of years may well provide far greater-and safer-promise for future decades than today's nuclear fission reactors.

Since the scientists and technologists cannot agree among themselves, it must be the village square that voices the judgments of relative values in the design of the nation's energy future.

Callous CUNY Impasse

The legislative package that is essential to provide for the future funding of the City University is endangered not by any substantive disagreement over its basic cootents but by the legislators' reluctance to be associated with unpopular decisions in an election

No serious doubts remain that the die bas been cast against free tuition. One serious obstacle to approval of the package is the politicians' reluctance to share theblame for ending a long-cherished tradition.

State Senator Warren Anderson, the leader of the Republican majority, exhibited irresponsibility and confused the issues with his astonishing statement that he did not bave "anything to do with reopening CUNY." Mr. Anderson ignores the fact that Albany has a clear obligation to protect students' access to public bigher education, regardless of whether they live in New York City or elsewhere io the state,

Mayor Beame had been less than helpful in refusing to joio those who must publicly shoulder the burden of that painful decision, but in a statement last night he msde it clear in tone and in substance that nothing now stands in the way of reopening the university except Albany's delaying action. Mr. Beame's statement should make it materially easier for the New York City delegation in Albany to end the characle that now delays the reopening of CUNY-for it is evident that there is not the slightest prospect of changing an outcome already firmly dictated by the budget.

It is unconscionable for the Legislature to keep Governor Carey's proposal for a $24 million advance to CUNY tied up in the embattled package. There is no longer any need for the original strategy of dangling that $24 million, desperately needed to meet the university's May and June obligations, hefore the Board of Higher Education in order to obtain action on toition. The board has acted; and by now separating the rescue fund from the delayed package, the Legislature could quickly allow the university to be re-opened.

Not to do so is to show contempt for the rights of those young people whose academic work remains caught in the impasse and who should be preparing soon for summer studies or summer johs. To hold these students hostage in the present maneuvering is an act of political

Adirondack Mischief

Governor Carey's sound legislative proposals for improving the workings of the Adirondack Park Agency necessarily involved the risk that they would be so amended by the Legislature that the end result would be harmful. That is why some of the agency's champions were doubtful about any tampering with the law. A serious attempt is indeed now being made to weaken the Governor's bills through amendments. But it is this effort that should be heaten back and not the legislation itself.

One of the two threatening proposals introduced in the Senate would cancel the agency's jurisdiction over the hullding of single-family dwellings in Resource Management areas, the most vulnerable in the Park. There would be oo great loss if the agency were decied the right flatly to disapprove such applications—it does that now ooly in the rarest cases-but it should certainly have the right and duty to iosist on standards and conditions that will keep such houses in harmony with the environment. That can only he a service to both the private owners aod the general public.

Potentially more damaging is the scheme to limit the Governor's choice of agency board members to nominees picked by Local Government Review Boards, which have been generally hostile to the agency's work from the start. The whole polot of this mischievous move is to start undoing the concept of the Adirondacks as a statewide interest. To assign Park residents an appropriate number of memberships on the agency board is reasonable and called for by the law as it stands. To allow the localities a hand in choosing an administrative board charged with overseeing the zoning and planning activities of those same localities is obviously to weaken its objectivity and significance. It would encourage an even narrower parochialism in the future.

The Governor's bills-which provide, among other improvements, for the substitution of effective civil pensities for the present ideffective criminal sanctions—are too essential to be lost by having them tied to changes that should compel him to veto the entire measure. If the proponents of these changes believe in them, they should submit them as separate bills, which could then be passed or, we would hope, defeated on the floor or at worst be individually rejected by the Governor.

M.A.C. Bonds: In Defense of Moody's Rating Declining Societies:

Moody's Investor Service is to be congratulated for its forthright stand in rating the bonds of the Municipal Assistance Corporation on their investment merits instead of by politicized arithmetic. It ill becomes Felix Rohatyn, M.A.C.'s chairman, and Smon Rifkind, M.A.C.'s chief counsel, to accuse Moody's of gross negligence and gross incompetence.

M.A.C. was, after all, conceived as a byproduct of the biggest municipal default of all time, even though this default was subsequently called a moratorium and received the blessing of the New York State Legislature.

It was, in fact, Mr. Rifkind who pleaded in favor of abrogating the sanctity of private contracts and of invalidating the time-honored and constitutionally guaranteed rights of bondholders in New York Mr. Rifkind's very success in partially expropriating the many lovestors who had put their money and faith in the financial integrity of the city now presumably causes Moody's to fear that Messrs. Rifkind and Robatyn may have another plan up their sleeves—this time directed against the M.A.C. bondhold-

Moody's correctly feels that the principal and interest payments on Arated bonds should not have to depend oo the good faith or good will of politicians, city administrators or self-appointed Robin Hoods. An A ratiog implies no risk to either principal or interest under present or foreseeable conditions. Clearly such a value judgment cannot be applied to M.A.C. bonds, which are even now the subject of renegotiation attempts on the part of M.A.C. to reduce the rate of interest M.A.C. agreed to only last year.

Moody's has a fiduciary obligation to its clients who subscribe to its service to rate boods according to its judgment and not to succumb to pressure of threats. The very thought that interested parties should try to put pressure on an impartial arbiter's decisions appears distasteful. M.A.C.'smuch-publicized threat to sue Moody's is clearly an attempt to direct the public's attention away from the sorry state of New York's financial affairs. It is a surprising maneuver on the part of former Judge Rilkind and investment banker Rohatyn, who are attempting thereby to prolong the mirage they invented last year.

Since New York is not Russia, it is incooceivable that a court here would order a financial adviser bow to advise or a rating agency how to rate. If, on the other hand an American court should so order, it would surely be a signal for all boodholders, M.A.C. or otherwise, to head for the lifeboats.

Let the Cattle Graze To the Editor:

editorial entitled "The Tala of Two Committees." Although the editorial lacked specific information, it seemed to refer to Senate Bill S. 2555, called the "National Rangelands Policy Act." Does The Times really believe that this bill will contribute to the "environmental integrity of the West?" Do you really believe that cattle and sheep grazing on Bureau, of Land Management land for a few months grossly hurt the general public? If you do, it may interest you to know that it costs about $60 per day to feed 400 to 500 cattle. That results in an unnecessary amount of $1,860 per mooth. Does oot that increase in price hurt the public even more than graziog? I am sorry, but we ranchers and the general public cannot pay for that: extra cost with "environmentalintegrity."

The Times further charged that B.L.M. laod belongs "to all Americans and should be mansged as such." Perhaps you do not feel that most all Americans benefit from the sheep and cattle that graze the land. Perhaps you are vegetarians. If you are, come out West with your families. I will take you to some B.L.M. land so you can benefit from it and have s picnic while surrounded by miles of nothing hut sagebrush and cheatgrass.

Palestine: The Unavoidable Issue

on "Israel's Dilemma" (May 11) you negotiations with the Palestine Libera-Washington and Jerusalem" on the issue of settlements in the occupied territories "is bound to occur, whenever Israel and Jordan move into the oegotiatioo process on the future of the West Bank."

Surely this reference to Jordan and the West Bank cootained something of an oversight; especially in view of past Times editorials.

While Jordan may still have some role to play in bringing about a new Middle East status quo, today the Palestinian Arab factor is real and can oo longer be linked solely with the future of Jordan. The national rights of the Palestinian Arah people are both internationally recognized and historically valid-more historically valid in fact than the right of Hashem ite King Hussein to rule on the east bank of the Jordan.

Consequently, while Americans caution the Government of Israel to halt . settlements in the occupied territories and to formulate a reasonable, comprehensive peace initiative, it is imperative not to mislead Israelis to think that they can continue to svoid the Palestinian problem one which State Department spokesman Harold Saunders a few mooths ago termed "the heart of the conflict."

In fact, a recent Foreign Policy Association opinion poll indicates that among participants in F.P.A.'s "Great Decisions" program (admittedly an international affairs elite) better than three to one favor tha "right of Palestinian Arabs to an independent state." And within Israel a new committee headed by a former Secretary General of the dominant Labor party, Lova Eliav, has issued a striking manifesto affirming 'That this is the homeland of its two peoples-the people of Israel and the Palestinian Arab people' and "That the establishment of a Palestinian Arah state alongside the State of Israel should be the outcome Organiza mutual recognition." Even Israel's most respected 'Arabist, Yehoshafat Harkabi, has recently broken with the paralyzed policies of the Rabin government indicating that "the only obvious Palestinian body oow is the P.L.O."

There will be no stable peace in the Middle East if attempts to avoid Palestinian nationalism cootinue. Consegmently the future of the West Bank (and Gaza Strip) can not be solely determined by Israel and Jordan.

Iran's Nuclear Policy To the Editor:

I am writing in connection with a column which appeared in the May 11 edition of The Times entitled "Atom Bombs for Sale" by Robert Kleiman, Reference to the effect that Iran will make a bomb should Pakistan do so is an absolutely false aupposition to which no credence should be attached.

1 should like to erase any misgiving concerning Iran's nuclear policy by etating that Iran oo July 1, 1968 signed and subsequently io 1970 ratified the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty and has always been a firm advocate of the peaceful use of nuclear energy. Moreover, Iran has consistently played a prominent role in prohibiting and preventing the diffusion of nuclear weapons on the international scene and shares a genuine coocern about. the possibility of small countries gainmg access to ooclear arms.

Energy Dependability

By James W. Howe

WASHINGTON - The Administration's policy for achieving energy security is to decrease United States dependence on foreign oil. This would be done chiefly by increasing domestic energy sources, by energy conservation, and by coordinating our energy planning with other industrialized countries. This is good but not enough.

It needs to be supplemented by a long-range effort to make the international energy-trading system more dependable. After all, even if the United States could become "embargoproof," this would not make us very secure if some of our chief trading partners (Europe, Japan, Latin Amer-ica) were still vulnerable to an oil embargo.

Improving the dependability of international energy trade can be done in three ways. First, by increasing the volume of energy wherever in the world it can be done at least cost, because this will help restrain prices in spite of the cartel. Second, by conserving energy use everywhere in the world, which will have a similar effect in restraining prices. Third, by offering the oil-importing third-world countries an alternative to subservience to the oil cartel. Their approval of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries' actions in International forums is believed to bave been a significant factor in encouraging OPEC's hard line on prices.

For a small amount of money (relative to the $600 billion to $800 billion of capital needed to reduce dependence) a program of international cooperation on energy could be started that would contribute to all three of these effects. Production of energy could be expanded and diversified by helping poor countries develop their own domestic energy sources. In some cases this might involve advising them, or lending them money to buy advice, on how to develop their petroleum potential. (A recently released United States Geological Survey report shows, for example, that Latin America alone has about four times more prospective oil-bearing area than the Middle East, although not necessarily as much oil.) More typically, it might involve working cooperatively with developing countries to help them learn more about their other energy resources such as coal or hydroelectricity.

countries in research on small-scale inexhaustible sources of energy. Most such sources (sunshine, photosynthesis and wind) are much more plentiful in the tropics, where most poor countries are situated. Thus, it may pay big dividends in terms of future United States security to make sure that there is a vigorous energy research program in the tropics.

This certainly proved to be true with respect to food. It was joint research in Mexico that helped to give us highvield wheat. That joint approach has grown and prospered to the point where today there are several worldwide research networks on a variety of grains, each coordinated through one internationally sponsored research

The same could be done with energy. There would be a much better chance for a breakthrough in research on wind or solar electric or biogasification if there were a research network for each that was coordinated by an internationally designated institution that could help avoid gaps or duplications, and exchange information, materials, equipment and personnel. Of course, some of this research in inexhaustible sources would not pay off for many years.

There is little likelihood that any of these steps would dramatically change the supply of energy by 1985 (the Administration's target date for energy "independence"), but for that matter there is not much likelihood that the vastly larger sums spent on sophisticated oil-recovery methods or nuclear fission will do so either.

But one early payoff from helping the emergenc countries develop their energy sources and conserve their use of energy would be to convince them they too can look forward to improving their energy security by working with such a cooperative international energy program. That will give them a future alternative to exclusive dependence on OPEC. It may embolden them to withhold their support of any further unreasonable oil price hikes. And if that helps to prevent such price hikes, it will improve the energy security of this country and of our chief trading partners at very low cost.

Our search for energy security cannot be limited to seeking independence from the world energy trading system. It must go beyond that and take the common sense, relatively inexpensive steps that will help to make that system more dependable.

Even more frequently it might mean James W. Howe is a senior fellow at

Empty 'Triumphalism'

By William Safire

WASHINGTON-In Geneva this week, the Arab-African bloc, strongly supported by the Soviet Union, is steamrollering the Western democra-cies and could be paving the way for a United States withdrawal from the United Nations

Few people realize the possibility of such far-reaching, far-off conse-quences, because the meeting in Geneva is not of the United Nations, but of the International Labor Organization. Not many Americans are yet aware that our threat to pull out of the LLO. -which is the United Nations in microcosm-is a calculated warning to the rest of the world not to take the U.S. presence in the U.N. for granted.

We have been members of this worldwide labor group for decades longer than our other international associations, thanks to the willingness of America's organized labor to rush in where isolationists feared to tread. The United States has long cooperated on the theory that this was a "technical" and humanistic organization. not a political grouping, and the LL.O. has done much, over nearly three generations, to improve conditions for working people.

But last November, at the urging nf George Meany and Lane Kirkland of the A.F.L.-C.L.O., the United States served a two-year notification of its intent to withdraw from the LL.O. The reason: The LLO. had been perverted by the Soviet-Arab-African coalition into an antidemocratic political forum, dominated by those nations where labor is most often a form of slavery.

What was the reaction to this United States warning? Among the other industrial democracies, which had been caving in to oil pressures, tha reaction was salutary. United States Ambassador to Yugoslavia Laurence Silberman, a former Under Secretary of Labor and one of the few U.S. diplomats trusted by organized labor, was dispatched to foreign capitals with the message that the United States was serious, and that we expected our industrial allies to put an end to obsequious abstentions and stand with us in democratic solidarity (a word more familiar to labor than to diplomats).

Accordingly, when the Arab-African-Soviet move came in Geneva this week to politicize the proceedings by admitting the Palestine Liberation Organization, the nations with free labor movements-France, Great Britain, West Germany and other democracies -stood with the United States in opposition. Even the LL.O. bureaucracy. which had always polished the Arab-African apple, urged the third world to. refrain from what conference chairman United Nations..

Michael O'Leary of Ireland called "in-dulging in ideological triumphalism."

. But the third world had the votes and, like a foolish union that votes to strike even when it destroys the business that provides its members' jobs, steamrollered the industrial democracies in Geneva last week: The terrorists were seated.

In deference to the other industrial democracies that showed some gumption when we asked them to, the U.S. delegation did not pull out of the I.L.O. then and there, contenting itself with boycotting those sessions where the Palestinians speak.

But the course is clear: At the LLO., the Arab-African bloc will happily triumph at will, as the United States takes its leave. In time, the Russians will stop smirking as the third world begins to fix its demands on them.

After a while, it will become apparent that the political delights of embarrassing the Americans had nothing to do with the LL.O.'s mission, which was supposed to be to raise the worldwide standard of living of workers. The Americans will not be in the hall to listen to demands by underdeveloped nations that we share our hard-earned wealth with them, now, because they want it now. Nor will the Americans be there to show how living standards can be raised by attracting capital investment, fertilizing the soil with entrepreneurial freedom, and providing technical help to those who want to help themselves. Instead, America's international labor relations will be conducted on a nation-to-nation basis. And therein lies the implicit threat to the United Nations. The fight in the LL.O. this week is not really about Palestinians; it is about quick political "triumphalism" at the expense of steady economic growth. America is going to reject the notion that it owes the world a living, and having done so, we are going to gain new respect in the world.

In the campaign this fall, with the example of the LLO, before us, we will debate whether the interests of America and of freedom in the world are best served by staying in the United Nations, or by dealing one-on-one with other nations.

By carrying out our warning to withdraw from the LL.O., we by no means withdraw from the world, or from setting the criteria for productive labor everywhere—we will demonstrate that we are not prepared to cooperate in the destruction of our values.

By carrying out our threat to leave the politicized ILO., we will sober up · the intoxicated triumphalists at the

An Albany favorite, alfuding to the pulse-quickening interval when a long-negotiated, extremely complicated issue lias to be resolved, usually against a harrowing deadline. The last couple of weeks of a session are times of "heavy lifting." The origins of the term remain obscure, but some say it refers to the weighty burdens of public office.

"Must" List.—The thing to have if you're a legiclative leader. In the Capitol, where one man's "must" is another man's "maybe." all the leaders circulate their "must lists" among themselves to make sure that the bills that "must" be passed are, in fact, passed. Lists are so popular in Albany that some aides keep lists of their lists.

Hang Loose—The period when a legislator has not made up his mind. Another conversational snippet: "Hang loose oo that one—doo't go into the tank yet."

Off the Hook—An aptly brutal expression referring to that blessed state in which a legislator is told—with great relief—that he doesn't have to vote for some politically painful measure, because his party's leader has accumulated enough votes from others. Many bills—tax bills, for example—are passed by seemingly narrow margins because lawmarkers are let "off the hook." An Albany joke: Why are there gaps between the signatures on the Declaration of Independence? Answer: Because of all the guys who were let off the hook.

By BARBARA CAMPBELL Two young sisters who bad pleaded with a court oot to take them from their Long Island foster parents of five years; after a bitter two-year custody fight between the girls natural mother and the foster parents, ran away Saturday from the temporary foster home in which they were placed. "We've had enough," said Cheryl Wallece, 13 years old, the older of the two girls, who told of their decision to run eway in an ioterview in a midtown botel dining room Saturday night. "We want to go home to our mom and dad in Hicksville."

They were referring to the foster parents from whom they bad been taken.

The Nassau County police put out a 13-state alarm for the girls Saturday night after their temporary foster parents, who live in West Islip, L. I, reported them miss-

The police went immediately to the home of the girls' foster parents of five years; George and Dorothy Lhotan, but the girls were oot there.

During the interview the girls, refused to disclose where they were staying. They were accompanied by two adults who declined to their names but who said that the girls had got in touch with them after they ran away and that they felt responsible for

Cheryl and Petricia, who is 12, and their two younger sisters, Catherine, 10, and Cynthia, 9, had been taken court order from the Hicksville home of the Lhotans last April 9. Girls Reject Mother

The girls had insisted that they considered the Lbotans their real mother and father and that their oatural mother cause she rarely visited during the five years they were in foster care,

Marcia R. Lowry, head of the Children's Right Project of the New York Civil Liberties Union, bad argued that the wishes of the girls should be considered paramount over the biological claim of the mother.

However, the courts did not agree with Miss Lowry. Justice Bernard F. McCaffrey of the State Supreme Courtin Mineola ruled that the natural mother was now fit to take cere of ber children and should have them back.

The Appellate Division of State Supreme Court upbeld Justice McCaffrey's ruling and stated thet the Lhotans had an obligation as foster parents to "keep the proper distance at all costs" and to: prepare the children for eventual return to their natural parents. Miss Lowry said that the girls called her yesterday and told her they bad run zway but that they had decbined. to say where they were. She said she would file a writ of habeas corpus in United States District Court in Brooklyn this week challenging the custody decision.

She said she believed it was unconstitutional under the circumstances of the case. "to make a custody determination based on the paramount right of the parent as long as the parent is fit."

Girls Give Views

Cheryl and Patricia, eipping soft drinks as they sat calmly in the dining room at the ho-tel, said they had not got in touch with the Lhotans.

"Mom and dad know noth-ing about this," said Cheryl, "We're afraid somebody will say they planned it, and that would be a lie."

The girls said they had visited their natural mother four times, but "she knew we came because we wanted to see our sisters."

They spoke indifferently about their natural mother but expressed concern for their younger sisters.

"Cathy mopes around all day," Cheryl said. "She locks herself in her room. She doesn't talk. I was surprised. she didn't even seem excited when we came to visit. She says she feels everything has caved in on her.

An analysis of the 29-year history of the Central Intelligence Agency, prepared with the cooperation of the C. I. A. for the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence Activities, said that the agency over the years became, a bureaucracy that ran amok because of conflicting interests and that it had failed to fulfill several of its essential missions. The analysis, written by Anne Karalekas, a Har-vard-trained historian, blames a succession of Presidents, Congress, the armed services and the C. I. A. itself. [1:8.]

Six persons were killed and 30,000 made homeless by the flood that followed the break up of the Teton Dam in Idaho on Saturday. Property damage was estimated at $500 million. A 35-mile stretch of farm and grazing land north of Idaho Fells was inundated, and the flood was about five miles wide at some points. The number dead may increase when local members of the Mormon Church complete a house to house count in the area. [1:1-2]

Democratic Party leaders in New Jersey seemed fairly sure that Jimmy Carter would win the victory that had been widely predicted in the state's primary tomorrow. They estimated that Mr. Carter would win a majority of the 91 convention delegates that will be chosen, but there was general disagreement over the size of his prospective majority. [1:6-7.]

President Ford, amplifying his opposition to court-ordered busing in a releviation interview, said that parents should have the right to send their children to segregated private schools if the schools did not benefrom Federal funds or tax advantages. He repeated his pledge to ask Congress "inthe very near future" to enact legislation limiting the scope of Federal court jurisdiction in school desegregation cases. He said Attorney General Edward H. Levi has assured him that such legislation would be constitutional. [1:5.]

Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama has apparently given up hope that he will ever be President. His characteristic pugnacity. gone and he seemed thoroughly dispirited as he made a final, feeble effort to get support in California's primary tomorrow. A new poll estimated that he would get only 2 percent of the vote. He seemed almost relieved that his quest for the Presidency that began in 1964 was almost over, except for the Democratic National Convention next month, where he will probably use the 170 delegates committed to him in political bargaining. [1.6-8.]

Thousande of dollars invested in stocks and bonds from 1978 to 1974 were lost by the athletic association that runs varsity sports for the Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs. The scademy acknowledged the loss in response to a report by Representative Les Aspin, a member of the House Armed Services Committee Mr. Aspin and the academy differed on the amounts. [1:4.]

When New York City's public colleges would reopen was more uncertain than ever when it became apparent that Assembly Democrats would not support the financing program for the City University system that the Democratic leaders in the Legisleture, who worked out a strategy to get Republican backing, had planned to push through. Upstate Democrats in the Assembly were rejuctant to support a rescue plan for the City University when State University schools in areas they represent were facing stringent budget cuis. [1:1-2.]

Ted Gross, who had been a member of the administration of Mayor John V. Lindsay and who had served a prison term for taking kickbacks on city contracts, was found shot to death in an automobile in Brooklyn. 3 Gunmen Invade Social Club

Three gunmen invaded a private club in lower Manhattan, forced 30 patrons to disrobe, then escaped with an undetermined amount of money and a Lincolo Cootioental limousine belonging to one of the victims, the police reported. Several of the patrons were pistol-whipped bot no one was seriously injured and no shots were fired.

A Police Department spokesman said three men, armed with two handguns and a shotgun, broke into the club at 7 West 19th Street about 5:40 A.M. and annouoced a holdup. They forced the 30 persons to disrabe, then collected money and valuables.

"More than 200,000 schoolchildren are absent every day," said Rudolph M. Callender, an attendance teacher for 13 years who now directs the bureau of attendance, at 65 Court Street in Brooklyn. 'They miss a total of 30,000,000 school days a year. Now, that's a fantastic Truancy has gotten so bad in the country's schools that the National Association of Sacondary School Principals last June named it as the No. 1 school problem.

Among the sociological reasons for the problem, Mr. Callender said, were Watergate ("where kids saw older people doing the kinds of things they shouldn't be doing"), child abuse, parental permissiveness, the resurgence of teen-age gangs, and

Inventiveness is not what every woman is looking for when she chooses new clothes. The majority feel much more secure with familiar things, perhaps in a different color, or with a slight variation in detail. And so the majority of fashion designers, despite their reputation for being madcaps, concern themselves with re-fining and polishing rather than origin-

No Need to Be Bizarre

In New York at the momeot there are a few designers concerned with new ways of cutting and draping fabric. The results are not necessarily hizarre. "So far as I know, Raphael Weili did not publish his recipe. However, in homes and clubs around town, the recipe never includes rosemary, thyme or garlic. Usuallt includes tarragon, though in the late Louis Benoist's recipe, he says it is optional Oh, yes, parsley and chives are always used." Mr. Benoist's recipe, which Professor Amerine enclosed, is from "Favorite Recipes of California Winemakers," collected and published by the Wine Advisory Board in San Francisco. Mr. Benoist was a friend and for many years owner of Almaden Vine-yards. Here is the recipe.

A few months ago we printed a recipe created by Alfredo Viazzi, the New York restaurateur. It was for his spaghetti alla fetucelle, and one of the ingredients speci-fied was "pitted, imported rad olives." This was, un-doubtedly, misleading, for we had numerous inquiries as to precisely what red olives but it is available only in are and where they may be purchased.

. The "red" olives specified in the recipe are such olives as the Greek calamati, the Spanish Alfonso and tha Italian Gaeta, all available or most of them sold throughout the city where fine imported olives may be purchased. These olives, in a broad sense, would be called "black" although they have a purplish-red cast. One source for such olives is Kassos Brothers, 570 Ninth Avenue (between 41st and 42d Streets).

He's a bunch of outmoded attitudes that can't survive in the kind of concrete landscape that is Mr. Ferreri's comic metaphor.

Gérard is a factory engineer by profession and a colossally self-assured male supremacist by nature. He lives with Pierrot, his young son who doesn't yet walk, on a high floor of a spanking-new apartment house in a flat furnished with stereos, hip posters and all sorts of superfluous time-saving gadgets, including an electric carving lutie.

Some time before the start of the film Gérard's wife has walked out on him to find her walked out on imm to mid her own identity—which is all right with Gérard, who doesn't mind playing mother as well as father to his son and who has no trouble finding tem-porary mistresses. In fact, he rather likes the temporariness of his sex partners. They don't question his ego nor invade the territory he rules as a father—until the appear-bouts of furious love-making she begins to settle in.

In the way no other wo-man ever has, she also begins to invade his consciousness, which, to a Narcissus like Gérard, is somehow to dim-inish him. When she tells him that he never succeeds in giving her an orgasm, she says it matter-of-factly, without accusation, but the effect is eventually devastating.

When she tells him that Pierrot needs to be touched, cuddled and loved, he sees it as a threat to him. "I need to be loved," he yells at her. Finally Valerie, sweet, beautiful, apparently passive per-suades Gérard his sex is the root of his egocentricity.

"You are nothing without it," she says, which prompts Gérard to make the ultimate gesture to prove her wrong.

Even so, the itch at interchange continued. It wasn't only the Marxes who took a fling at the silent medium. Eddie Cantor, Will Rogers, Victor Moore, W. C. Fields and various others made the try. Fields even succeeded, more or less. And Broadway plays, talky and visually limited as they were still served as properties. Buster Keaton, possessed of an almost entirely visual mind, was wrestling with what had been a stage success when he made "Seven Chances"; lockily, he wrestled it to a fall, finally overwhelming its confined plotting with his own nightmare improvisa-

Has anyone yet made a signature of sound as Chaplin and Keaton made one of silence? I don't think so, but I keep looking. My own strongest clue these days comes from having blown hot and cold about Woody Allen. It so happens that I've never much cared for Mr. Allen's work on stage, yet when I go to his films—"Bananas" and "Take the Money and Run" in high particular—I dissolve rather quickly. Can I conclude that his humor, as such, is more native to screen than stage -and that we are on the track of something? In "Bananas" two men carrying their crosses to be crucified meet and become entangled, creating quite a traffic jam. For the stage, that's out. Expensive and impractical. composed in 1948 and receiving its first New York performance, is a four-move-ment choral suite conjuring up an aural image of Mu, a legendary contineot engulfed hy the Pacific Ocean eons ago. There is no text, simply vowel and consonant sounds designed to capture the archaic flavor of the subject.

By using modal scales, open harmonies and primitive rhythmic motor patterns, Mr. Still has created an undeniably compelling piece of mu-sical exotica. The effect was further enhanced by the vivid choreographic interpretations of the four sections denoted worship, dancing, yearning and magic - by the Chuck Davis Dance Company.

Works by 11 other com-posers gave an indication of the wide stylistic variety practiced by black composers over the last century, from the religious-spiritual tone set by James Bland (1854-1911) and W. C. Handy (1873-1958) to the more advanced techniques employed in recently written pieces by Ulysses Kay and Talib Rasul Hakim.

One especially impressive discovery was the final sec-tion of "The Ordering of Mo-ses" by R. Nathaniel Dett (1882-1943), a choral epic on a Handelian scale and bris-tling with striking dramatic

God Did a Hell of a Job, Too

"God must be a Latin." Laz Barrera said, "because there's no way you could run a borse like he came out of the Preakness." Lazaro Sosa Barrera is a Latin trainer. Angel Cordero Jr. is a Latin jockey. Esteban Rodriguez Tizol is a Latin owner and bis horse, Bold Forbes, began life racing for Latins among Latins at El Comandante, the track at San Juan, Puerto Rico. When, after winning the Kentucky Derby, Bold Forbes finished third in the Preakness bleeding from a cut on his left hind foot, everybody concerned realized it would take prayer as well as veterinary medicine to get the horse patched up for the Belmont Stakes three weeks later. That's where God came in. "I didn't think we had a 25 percent chance," Laz said, "but between my brother Luis and me and the blacksmith, we did a hell of a job."

This was about half an hour after Bold Forbes won the 108th Belmont by a neck from McKenzie Bridge with Great Contractor a neck farther back. Later Laz would agree that God and Cordero had done a hell of a job too. One had helped Bold Forbes get ready to run. The other had kept him running when the Belmont's mile and a half had left this swift sprinter empty of everything

"He is a great horse," Laz said, "because he run this race with a quarter-crack behind. He win with three-quarters of a hoof."

"Are you going to declare tomorrow a national holi-day?" Gov. Rafael Hernandez-Colon of Puerto Rico was "It is already a national holiday today," he said "The race was telecast to Puerto Rico by satellite and the viewership must have been 99.99 percent." Two More Yumps in its 110 years, the Belmont has bad runners of higher quality than any of the nine that Bold Forbes beat. The race had produced more impressive performances, like the overpowering rush that brought Secretariat bome 31 lengths ahead of his field three years ago. The stakes nas been run in faster time than the 2 minutes 29 seconds that Bold Forbes oceded. But never has a Belmont crowd seen a pluckier winner, a finer ride or a more exciting finish than Saturday's.

With an eighth of a mile to go, Bold Forbes was in front by six lengths but McKenzie Bridge and Great Contractor taking aim on him. At the 16th pole they were getting close, and 100 yards from the wire it seemed certain that one or both would overtake him.

He was still digging, though. Nature never meant this own stout heart make him run farther than ba can. At the last instant Cordero switched his whip and whacked him once left-handed. Startled the horse furched away from this unexpected stroke, swinging his hindquarters out. He may not have brushed either McKenzie Bridge or Great Contractor, but be may have intimidated them. With Cordero holding him together, be flashed under the wire. Angel knew he had it. The rider flung a fist aloft in triumph.

Unlike most watchers, Barrera didn't think Bold Forbes would be caught. When the colt still bad a length and a spent to close the gap. "But probably at a mile and a half and two yumps," he said, "they woulds caught us." Triple Hindsight half to spare, the trainer told himself the others were too

Actually, Bold Forbes ran a shade fartiser than a mile and a half, for after ha broke on top Cordero kept him well from the rail on the first turn. He had from to take over the shortest path before reaching the bend, but Barrera had planned it this way because, he said, all horses are easier to rate out in the middle of the track.

Bold Forbes had burned himself out doing the first six furlongs of the Preakness in 1:09; and Laz was anxious to forestall another such mistake. He hoped for a pace of about 47 seconds for the first half and 1:12 for threequarters. He explained that borses are worked on the rail in the morning and, if possible, raced on the rail to save ground, and when they find themselves on the rail they recognize it as a signal to go to work. Away from the rail, Cordero was able to take his mount a half-mile in 47 and three quarters in 1:11 1/5. "Were you disappointed that his last half was a slow 53 seconds," the trainer was asked. "No," Laz said, "because it got me $150,000." It was really $117,000 but it seemed like more. Now that the Triple Crown series is over, hindsight suggests that Bold Forbes might have fitted victory in tha Preakness between his Kentucky Derby and his Belmont, if it hadn't been for the ruinous pace set in Baitimore. However, that would imply that Elocutionist didn't deserve his Preakness score, and on the day it was run, be did. For that matter, maybe Honest Pleasure would have won the Preakness if Bold Forbes hadn't run the legs off him early. The Latin bloc has plenty to look forward to, starting with the Travers Stakes at Saratoga. That's not till Aug. 21. Il weeks away, but Barrera said that would be Bold Forbes's next assignment. Wouldn't there even be a prep race before that?

"He don't need no prep," Laz said. "He needs a rest."

With talent, hustle, unity and total unselfishness, the Celtics won their 13th National Baskethall Association championship in 20 seasons yesterday by defeating the Suos, 87-80, in Phoenix.

Red Aoerbach, the presideot and general manager of the Celtics and coach of nine of the championship teams, recently spoke of Boston's wio-ning traditioo and ways.

"You aren't born a Celtic," said Auerbach, "you learn to be one. The learning is there you want it. Look around you when the Celtics travel, they dress well. If you dress tike a champion, you'll play like one. It's no accident that so many former Celtics are pro and college coaches.

their divisions as New York Yacht Club's 122d annual regatta ended after the start was delayed two hours. The other series winoer was James French Baldwin's 68-foot ketch, Sorcery III, out of Seawanhaka-Corin-thian Y. C., Oyster Bay, L.I., with a first and second place in the highest-rated Interna-tional Offshore Rule Class I. An international fleet of 77 cruising yachts waited for two hours until sufficient breeze rose. The regatta, sailed out of Riverside Y. C., from a mid-Sound start, then got a lively 12-to-14-knot, west-corthwest wind for good racing over 16.0 and 14.0-mile courses.

SCHENECTADY, N.Y., June 6-A eteady rain hampered performances today in the New York State Catholic High Schools outdoor track and field championships at Mont Pleasant High School. But Kendall Jackson of Buffalo'e Bishop Timon managed to toss a slipper discus 179 feet 2½ inches, the best throw in the state this year. Jackson also won the shotpot at 57-21/2. He was joined as a double winner by Carl Francis of St. Francis Prep who took the 100-yard dash in 10 seconds and the 220 in 22.4 seconds. Maurice Weaver of Power Memorial stayed back in the one-mile run until the half-way mark, then took the lead and won handily in 4:16.9.

Foyt Finally Takes Big Race in Texas

June 6 (AP) — A. J. Foyt, his brand-new Chevrolet Chevelle performing perfectly, cruised to an impressive victory today in the $100,000 Texas 500 stock car race. It was the first major triumph in his home state for the Carter, while the Democratic strongman at the other end of the state, Joseph F. Crangle, the Eric County leader who was deposed as state chairman by the Governor, is leading a national campaign for Mr. Humphrey.

Governor Carey has yet to express a Presidential preference. As a result he could go into the convention in his own state with almost no hargaining power. Thus, his chance of landing a place on the national ticket-normally at least a fair possibility for a New York Governor-is fading fast, even some of his admirers concede. The Democratic divisions are also evideot in the contest for the Democratie nomination to oppose Senator James L. Buck-ley, the Conservative-Republi-

The Mayor, again demon-strating his independence of his fellow Brooklyn Democrat, the Governor, encouraged the city's Democratic leaders to support a sprint that earned the City Council President Paul Power senior a 2-yard victory in 1:55.2. O'Dwyer, who has speot a lifetime as a political maverick, but at 68 is now considered by the county leaders as the least objectionable of the Senate Power retained the team title today with 37 points. St. Francis Prep was second with 25 and Loughlin third with 2314. Archbishop Mol-loy, the New York C.H.S.A.A. prospects, Mr. Crangle and many upstate Democratic leaders were prepared to back Daniel P. Mr. Cunningham, who is also the Bronx Democratic leader, has since been indicted on charges growing out of Maurice Bronx. Under pressure from the Governor, he took a leave of absence as state chairman.

Some Questions

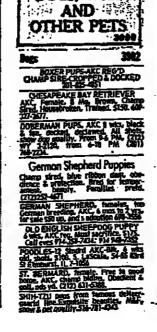

The Governor has selected Robert F. Wagner, the former Mayor of New York and a frequent Democratic organization baiter, as his state chairman, but there is considerable question among Democrats whether the Governor or the former Mayor, who has many enemies among county leaders, have the inclination or the power to lead the party.

Some Carey aides say in the era of Watergate and voter disdain for politics as usual, the Governor is better off keeping his distance from the party. But, many Democrats question whether the party is better off with an image similar to Cox-eys army in a year when New York voters will belp select, a the House of Representatives and state legislators.

The 5-cylinder Mercedes-Benz 300D. Another engineering milestone that ha quietly inspired a change in traditional automotive design.

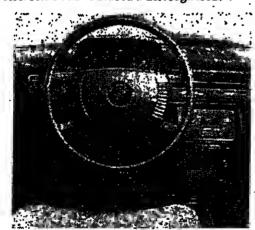

The Mercedes-Benz 300D has quietly changed the rules of the automobile game. This 5-cylinder Diesel automobile is an engineering milestone that offers a unique combination of performance, luxury; economy and quality.

In fact, the Mercedes-Benz 300D has inspired new thinking in automotive design. It is the most powerful, the most responsive and the swiftest Diesel passenger car ever sold.

For other manufacturers, a car with the myriad blessings of the 300D is somewhere far down the road. The 300D is here now. With it, Mercedes-Benz underscores its reputation for establishing new standards.

Unique in all the world

Four decades ago, Mercedes-Benz demonstrated the benefits of Diesel power. Now, the 5-cylinder engine in the 300D widely expands that list. It banishes forever the image of the Diesel as a rough, noisy work. horse. The 300D is indeed a thoroughbred.

Interior of the 300D: The world's most luxurious Diesel automobile:

Unlike any other make, the 300D takes advantage of precombustion chamber Diesel engine design. This development, pioneered by Mercedes-Benz, delivers a longer, smoother power pulse as well as more efficient combustion. The result: A combination of mileage and exhaust emission levels that no comparable-gasoline-engined sedan can approach.

Of course, the exact mileage you get depends on how and where you drive, as well as the condition and equipment of your automobile. But according to estimates published by the Federal Environmental Protection Agency (highway driving: 28 mpg; city driving: 22 mpg), the 20.6-gal-Ion fuel supply of the 300D should have no trouble letting it cruise 500 highway miles between fill-ups

Even if all your driving were in town, your 300D should stop-and-go more than 400 miles on a single tank. Compare that to your present car. No tune-ups-ever

When you do stop for fuel, a 300D offers several more pleasant surprises. First, Diesel fuel is usually cheaper than even regular gasoline. Countrywide, the difference averages 4t-7t per gallon less. Second, Diesel fuel is plentiful. Thousands and thousands of stations sell it all across America. Third, since Diesel fuel has re energy per gallon than gasoline, ever not only costs you less, it takes you farther.

Another plus: With a 300D you can happily forget about that expensive automotive custom known as the conventional tune-up. Because it has no spark plugs, points, distributor, condenser or carburetor, the Mercedes-Benz 300D never, ever needs one.

The complete sedan

When you compare it to most full-sized sedans, the 300D is a materials miser. It is not as big, not as heavy and not as thirsty. But it is every bit as practical and comfortable.

In fact, the 300D is a full 5-passenger sedan. Besides its generous interior, its trunk boasts a spacious 17.5 cubic feet of volume. On top of that, the 300D abounds with countless examples of innovative Mercedes-Benz safety engineering.

The 300D does lack one thing. A lengthy option. list. The reason is its complete array of standard equipment. Included are: Power-assisted steering and brakes, automatic transmission, air conditioning, electric windows, cruise control, central locking sys-

Search for Synthetic Fuels Delayed

By EDWARD COWAN

WASHINGTON, June 6-Two years after an Arab oil embargo focused national attention on "energy independence," efforts to create a synthetic-fuel industry based on the country's huge reserves of coal and shale remain bogged down by controversy and uncertainty.

Everything takes longer than expected. The subsidy legislation rejected by the House of Representatives in December reemerged from the Science Committee in modified form only two weeks ago. A significant number of liberals and conservatives still oppose it.

President Ford's January 1975 target of a million barrels a day of synthetic fuels by 1985 is plainly out of the questioo. Indeed, it is uncertain that the more recent and modest target of 350,000 barrels a day by 1982-83 can be realized.

There have been other disappointments. There is no bope that Congress will adopt Mr. Ford's January 1975 recommendation, since quietly dropped, for a price floor under imported all to protect high-cost. synthetic fuels from foreign competition. Any price protection will have to come from Government commitments to particular projects, a more politically bazardous route.

The Energy Research and Development Administration has dropped outright its goal of regular commercial production of oil from coal by 1985. It has cut in half its goal for gas from coal.

However, on the plus side, the agency expects to award by June 30 one or more cost-sharing contracts to design high-energy coal gasification plants. These facilities, to cost about $800 millioo each, would convert coal into pipeline-quality gas.

Five industrial groups have responded to an agency request for proposals for the demonstration program. They are the Conoco Coal: Development Company of Stamford, Conn., a subsidiary of the Continental Oil Company that is proposenting tinental Oil Company that is representing a consortium of nioe companies; the Illinois Coal Gasificatioo Group of Chicago, organized by five Illinois gas utilities; the Ken-Tex Energy Corporation of Owensboro, Ky., a joint venture of the Texas Gas Transmissioo Compaoy and the State of Keotucky; the Wheelabrator-Frye Corporation of Birmingham, Ala., and the Wyccaigas Group of New York, headed by Texaco Ioc.

These plants would be far larger than the research plants that have been op-erated by the Institute of Gas Technology in Chicago, and by Conoco Coal Develop-ment at Rapid City, S.D. In the face of delays, sethacks and un-

They seem to believe that the recovery of oil and gas from coal and the gray rock known as shale will—must—come about, in staggering quantities, because the resources are there.

"The resource of oll shale in Colorado, Utah and Wyoming, with some 600 billion recoverable barrels, is too large to ignore,' says Walter T. Herget, president of the Rio Blanco Oil Shale Project, a joint veo-ture of the Gulf Oil Corporation and the

Personal Finance: Minority Trusts and Ta

BY LEONARD SLOANE How can a person transfer money or property to a minor and minimize his taxes at the same time? One method recommended by many lawyers and ac-countants is establishment of a minority trust. In contrast to a so-called Totten trust —bank accounts set up with out a formal trust agreement -minority trusts have wide application and many ad-vantages for parents and pandparents who create them,

A trust is a means by which a donor gives title to certain assets to a trustee, who holds it for the benefit of another. Such trusts are often established for the benefit of minors as a means college expenses.

A minority trust is a convenient method for those who wish to make a gift to a minor but do not want the minor to have control of the principal and income immediately. Moreover, in most instances, it allows the donor to obtain his annual exclusion from gift taxes of up to $3,000—for a married cyuple

This can be done without court appointment, as is required code states that it is allowable when the assets given as a gift involve a "present interest" rather than an interest that will not be received until the future. Section 2503(c) of the code provides, in effect, that a gift in trust for a minor involves a present interest if the principle. in custodian accounts or

The advantage of the trust is that, although the beneficiary is not necessarily entitled to anything prior to attaining age 21, the trustee is free to operate within the powers given him by applicable law and the trust instrument, which may be quite broad and permit him to use trust assets to pay educational and other ex-penses," said Ralph M. Engel of the law firm of Burns & needs of the donor and beneficiary. For example, as a result of Revenue Ruling 74-43, the trust need not end at age 21 if the beneficiary makes no such demand. But it can remain in effect, at the option of the donor, at least until the beneficiary is 21—despite the fact that the age of majority has been changed in many states, including New York, New Jersey and Connecticut, to 18. Obviously, because of this power held by the trustee, the donor should have full necticut, to 18.

earlier. In fact, the bullish government estimates of out-put discouraged inventory building to some extent. In 1974, domestic cotton output was nearly 12 million bales, while usage and exports totaled roughly 9.5 militon bales.

The oversupply discouraged farmers the following year, and they produced about 8.3 million bales, while usage and exports rose to

On average, the United States exports a third of its cotton, mostly to Japan and Europe, about a third is used in making unblended cloth, and the rest is blended with synthetic fibers.

Earlier this spring the Government's survey of growers indicated that output would be 10 million to 11.5 million bales. Planters were apparently encouraged by the pickup in demand. Last week reports from the Delta and East Texas indicated that cotton planters were preparing to switch in-to soybeans, a crop that may be sown as late as July, that requires less fertilizers than cotton and that is comparable in earnings to farmers.

"If they haven't got their cotton in by now," a mill official said in New York last week, "they'd be foolish not to swing into soyheans. With beans for delivery in November selling at $6 a bushel, the crop is equivalent to 60-cent cotion, on an acre-for-acre basis."

plained:
"With cotton moving well above 60 cents and promis-ing to go much, much higher, planters will take the gamble, and stick with cotton."

As for the talk about breaking the price record set during the Civil War, traders on the New York Cotton Exchange gave three principal explanations for the impending rise:

First, it is expected that there will be only 3 million bales of cotton on the market in the nation when the current crop year ends on July 31. If so, it would be lowest carryover since the Civil War. The carryover on July 31, 1975, was also ow-4 million bales.

Secondly, the Soviet Union, an important cotton producer and the second largest producer of cotton goods, has reportedly been shopping for supplies. The trade believes the Soviet Union in 1975 probably had a shortfall in cotton along with the more publicized grain disaster.

Finally, the worldwide recession has apparently not curtailed cotton usage, as May 14 that cotton usage globally in the 1976-77 season is expected to reach 62 million bales, compared with

Role of Women Lagging In the Developing Nations

Continued From Page 45 colonial administrators and later . Western . aid "officials encouraged the economic changes that either displaced women from the traditional occupations (which had pro-vided them with status and income) or placed additional burdens on them as men moved into cash-crop or ur-ban jobs and no longer helped with subsistence

For example, development authorities in the agricultural sector have often excluded women farmers from land reform programs, from instruc-tion in modern agricultural methods and from access to

According to a paper by Ann Seidman, an economist from Wellesley College, and Achola Pais of Harvard Uni-versity, these were significant factors "contributing to the systematic neglect of food crops which have been, in part, responsible for the widespread famine characteristic of large areas of Africa in recent years."

To prevent such mistakes

opment plans in cerins of their impact on the situation

Such evaluation has been a requirement of all American sid programs for two years, but conference partici-pants indicated that few countries o fine third world currently place a high priority on women's e onomic participation.

On the contrary, according to Ingrid Palmer of the international Labor Organiza-tion, women's economic role is so low among govern-ments of less-developed na-tions that at a recent LLO. conference (on the division of labor under any redistri-bution of wealth between the rich nations and the poor) no mention was made of the sexual division of labor.

"Il was clear," she declared, "that any goodies coming from the new eco-nomic order would go to male wage employment."
Dr. Palmer and Dr. Boserup,

If you are a reader of-or advertiser in-Time, People, Sports Illustrated, Fortune or Money magazine, their editorial and production staffs urge you to consider the impact that our current strike against Time Inc. will have on these publications.

All of you have come to expect Time Inc.'s magazines to be of the highest quality both in content and appearance. Now the company is without the talents of most of its best writers, correspondents, researchers, copyreaders, artists and all the others who got the publications to press swiftly but carefully.

Stories in the magazines that appear this week have been "in the house" for weeks. But what of the weeks to come?

Firehouse Magazine Is Planned

By PHILIP IL DOUGHERTY Did you ever know any firemen, even volunteer fire-men? Dedicated, loyal and involved people generally, aren't they?

Well, those also happen to be the qualities in readers that publishers and their advertisers are looking for. Now an unlikely pair—Fireman Dennis Smith of Ladder Company 61 and Bartle Bull of the Social Register Bulls -have joined forces to put out a magazine that will put those wonderful qualities to work. Firehouse magazine will be a monthly consumer magazine for firefighters and their families (and buffs), and early indications are that it has already struck a respon-

FOOLING TIME INNOVATIONS #301 & #302

TIME over the years has introduced 300 different ways to make the magazine more flexible, more efficient, and more directly suited to a specific need. The two newest:

TIME T. The only magazine edition in America that goes exclusively to selected subscribers who have identified themselves as members of top management. And with a circulation of 300,000, TIME Treaches more of top management than do Forbes, Business Week, Fortune or Newsweek E. Its black & white page rate of $6,990 is considerably lower than any of theirs.

TIME Z. The biggest ultra-selective medium in America. It goes to 1.2 million TIME subscribers (average household income: $27,000) living in 1,414 of the nation's most affluent ZIP Code areas. The cost of a black & white page is only $14,830, which means that a 13-time schedule in TIME Z comes in for less than $200,000.

These new editions underscore both the desire and the capability of TIME to give advertisers target marketing opportunities unmatched by any other magazine. TIME. Where innovation is nothing new.

Carey Rejects Cuomo Compromise Plan To End Strike by Co-op City Residents

made it clear that Mr. Carey is reluctant to accept any solutioo calling for less than full payments by residents—some-thing that the Cuomo compromise would permit for another six months.

On the other hand, Mr. Cuo-mo defended his proposal hy saying thet it, at least, would bring about a return of some of the $27 million the state says t is owed, and that the ultimate goal was for all the mo ney that is owed to be paid.
Io an interview, Mr. Cuomo sald Friday that the "general parameters" of his plan had been neither accepted oor rejected by the Governor, which meant that his effort oow would be to "adjust specific parts" of his

In general, Mr. Chomo said his proposal was "the best I can get" because he could not persuade residents to egree immediately to the payment of the higher carrying charges.

in it. We just want to be all together again." Cheryl, who was an honor student io Hicksville, said she was oow failing io

"I hate seeing myself going down the drain after I worked so hard to become something," she said, "but I can't study. I can't coocentrate."

Petricia, who had just be-come ao honor student in Hicksville, said she, too, was not doing well in school. The girls said they had planned to run away for a week because they saw no reasons to remain in West Islip and no point in submit-ting to "forced" visits with their natural mother in Loog

Beach.

We usually got to see our, sisters for only a half hour, although we were there three hours," Patricia said.

Cheryl, who spoke with a maturity beyond her 13 years, did most of the talking while Patricia, who said she felt relieved at their decision to run away, finished her soda and dived eagerly ioto a bowl of ice cream.

"I want to go home—period," Patricia said, referring to the Lhotans' home. Foster Mother Defended

Cheryl said that she and her sisters were bitter over accusations by Miss Wallace's attorney that the Lhotans had turned the children against heir natural mother.

"If mom said ooce, she said it a thousand times," said Cheryl. "If at any time we wanted to go live with we wanted to go live with Miss Wallace, we were just to say the word."

Before they were placed with the Lhotans, the girls said they had been grossly neglected by their mother and often went hungry. The four girls and their two younger hrothers were placed in foster care after a hsbysitter called the police when their mother failed to return home.

"Before we were put in e foster home nobody cared about us," said Chervl, who, as the oldest, was often left to tend her younger sisters and brothers. "But it was so different in Hicksville. Somebody cared for us. For the first time, we had a father. "I didn't have to stay up at night worrying. I thought I could become somebody important 1 was glad I wasn't

A journey of rediscovery...

Artend a Bar Mitzvah at the Western Wall in Jerusalem. See a New York couple reunited in Israel with relatives from the Soviet Union. Accompany an old-time Yiddish actor to a class at Queens College where he learns that Yiddish is not yet dead. Follow a thousand young Jews on their mission of renewal in the Jewish State. Join narrator Theodore Bikel on this unusual journey to a new sense of identity for the Jews of New York. Filmed in Israel and New York.

Tonight at 10:30 P.M., WOR-TV, Channel 9

Presented by the United Jewish Appeal-Federation of Jewish Philanthropies Joint Campaign. A film by Americ Nowak and Paul Kresh. Produced by Americ Nowak Associates

WHAT IS THE APARTMENT LIFE?

From "The Short-Order Gourmet," Marc

Well, it's not boring your friends with pot roa

Not that everything Apartment People cook is expensive or difficult to prepare—but they do it with style. And that fits naturally with the great style they bring to the way they live. Even when they serve frozen, canned, or freeze-dried foods—conveniences their busy lives demand—they do it their way. And every month, two million two hundred thousand of these young, well-educated, affluent people do it our way as well. Because our way is their way.
